

We were officially notified on Thursday, September 17, that ROCK will be awarded $50,000 from a foundation. Interestingly, during my very first training call with GrantAppli, I received a text from our Board Chair about this grant opportunity. I had only 48 hours to submit the application because the foundation's committee was meeting and needed to review the applications.

I immediately put all of the information into GrantAppli, and it helped me develop a compelling letter of inquiry in a very short amount of time. A few days later, we were informally notified that the application had been very well received and that we would most likely receive funding.

If we had not signed on with GrantAppli just a week before this opportunity arose, I honestly don't know if I would have had enough time to write a strong LOI and submit it before the deadline.

We also submitted another grant application requesting $15,000 using GrantAppli, although we have not yet heard from that foundation.

GrantAppli has been a wonderful tool and a tremendous help in making my grant-writing process more efficient. I'm excited to continue using it to submit well-written, compelling grants while making the best use of my time.

Thank you for creating such a valuable resource for grant writers!
